ANOTHER STRIKE

Greatest Industrial Conflict in Years Commenced Friday

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 4.—The greatest industrial conflict in the United States in twenty years began Friday, when more than 300,000 coal miners in twelve states went on strike. The breaking off of the negotiations between the miners and operators of Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana brought those states into the conflict which may last thirty days or more.

As soon as possible the miners will ask the operators in the various districts for conferences for the purpose of making a settlement based upon a resolution adopted by the general miners convention in Cincinnati before the adjournment on Tuesday night.

In Illinois it is believed that the shut down of the mines will last from thirty to forty days. The differences between the miners and operators are so great that it is said it will take longer to reach an agreement. In Western Pennsylvania the powder question has caused so much friction that it is said peace will come only after a long struggle. In Michigan and Iowa the same condition prevails and in the southwest the tension is just as great.

Thomas L. Lewis, international president of the miners, gave out a statement in which he said he believed the suspension would be temporary, he blamed the failure to agree in Cincinnati on the operators.

The states that will be affected and the number thrown out of employment by the strike are as follows: Illinois, 75,000; Central Pennsylvania, 10,000; Western Pennsylvania, 35,000; Ohio, 50,000; Indiana, 20,000; Iowa, 15,000; Southwest Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas, Texas, and Oklahoma, 40,000; Michigan, 3,300; Kentucky, 4,500. Other employees affected 55,000.

The operators and miners of western Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana, broke off negotiations after many days' effort to come to an agreement. The operators gave an ultimatum to the miners which they rejected and the conference then adjourned. These three states have been in what is called an interstate agreement with the miners. Illinois left the interstate movement two years ago.

TERMS OF MINERS

After the break came the miners went into general convention and adopted the following resolution as a basis on which a settlement in these three states could be brought about: "The price of mining is to be increased five cents per ton, inch and a quarter screened lump coal, pick mining in block as well as bituminous districts. Machine mining of coal to be advanced four cents per ton and three cents per ton advance for mine run coal in the bituminous districts of Indiana and four cents advance screen lump coal in block and bituminous Indiana coal. All internal differences to be settled in the various districts. Inside day wage scale to be fixed at 5.55 per cent. increase; all other mine labor at proportionate increase. Each state in trilateral to sign up separately on above terms. The new explosives wherever used, to be furnished to miners at the same relative cost as black powder and the mine run bosses to govern wherever new explosives are used.

Tie-Up At Frank

Work in the Frank mines was tied up on Friday last, as a result of a mass meeting held that afternoon which was largely attended by miners from all the camps within a radius of ten miles from the local point. There was a fixed, firm and unanimous determination that the propositions of the company were not acceptable, more especially the first clause, making a reduction of wages in view of the fact that the operators throughout the United States, while not as yet willing to concede the whole amount of increase demanded by the United Mine Workers of America have signified that they would give a partial advance.

The Frank miners will demand an increase on the ground that the cost of living has materially increased. These demands for increase are recognized by all people as being only what might be expected in view of the climbing prices of all commodities.

Wireless Telegraphy

There have been so many instances of reported inventions that proved to be very different from actual inventions that it will not do to accept the news in Saturday's cable dispatches that a practical pocket wireless telegraph apparatus has been invented and exhibited at Munich. But that such an invention either has been made or will be made in a not distant future is inherently probable. If for no other reason, than it is necessary for the fulfillment of the distinctive function of wireless telegraphy as distinguished from telephony by wire. The great part that has been played by the wireless thus far has been in the accomplishment of the impossible—not in any mere economy, but in achieving the miracle of keeping ships at sea in communication with each other and with lands hundreds of thousands of miles away.

It remains to make that possible for the individual wanderer which was accomplished for the voyageur in ships so amazingly soon after Marconi's invention began to assume practical shape. And who can doubt that sooner or later, means will be found to produce an apparatus of portable character and convenient size that will accomplish this object, at least for moderate distances. The wireless telegraph has rivalled the telephone in the rapidity with which what seemed an impossibility has become a familiar experience of everyday. Whenever the "pocket wireless" shall become a reality, the last step in the parallel will have been taken.

BY THOUSANDS

Twelve Thousand Immigrants Arrive in Canada in One Week.

Seventeen special trains from Halifax and St. John arrived at Montreal on Friday and Saturday last with over six thousand immigrants, this big rush ending the biggest week in the immigration line that Canada has had for a good many years, over twelve thousand settlers having reached this country during the week.

In this party there were six special trains from the Empress of Britain, and several from other boats; while six specials laden with immigrants came in over the Intercolonial and Grand Trunk roads. Most of these settlers are coming out to the western provinces. Included in the party are thirty families of about 150 people who are going to Calgary to take up farms under Sir Thomas Staughessey's latest scheme of ready made farms for settlers in the irrigation country.

Klironow wondered whether the food master of the really believed that he was the unwilling victim of Eunice's Machiavellian plots to attract him or whether her maternal jealousy merely favoured this reluctance on his part.

"I don't know what's come over Eunice here lately," Mrs. Morningstar complained as she sat at the breakfast table. "I'll be a couple of days back she always minded me and pop and done what she was told. Here this morning I jangled her fur not taking that frock Miss Elly wanted to give her. I said to her what right had she to be as good as throw away a frock when we had to buy her all her clothes, but she wouldn't make me no answer. Then pop said she was to tell Miss Elly she'd changed her mind and would take the frock off of her if she wants her to, and Eunice she didn't make pop no answer neither. Then pop said to her did she understand she was to do it as soon as the young ladies come down this morning, and, mind you, Eunice she told pop she wouldn't! To pop she said that it couldn't hardly be done. I heard it. Why, our Olie she wouldn't have the dare to tell pop she wouldn't."

"And Eunice never did so before?"

"Well, I better guess she didn't!"

"But what do you suppose has made the woman suddenly turn—that is to say, how do you account for her asserting herself like that all of a sudden?"

"Well," said Mrs. Morningstar, "to be sure, no person ever offered her no frock before."

"There's something in that," Klironow admitted.

"And then I wouldn't put it past her that she's 'spunkin' up' because she thinks she's getting on."

"He is a jester," granted Klironow, with apocryphal sarcasm.

"I guess, too," Mrs. Morningstar vigorously acquiesced in this view of her son.

"What did Mr. Morningstar do about it when Eunice refused to oblige him?" inquired Klironow, with interest.

"Well, I never seen pop more surprised. He jawed her and he argued her till she didn't know what to say to her no more. But she just kept her stubborn head and said she wouldn't do it to take the frock. Then pop told her she couldn't wear it herself—she could give it to Olie after the board had went home a ready. Well, then, Eunice said, if Olie wanted to wear it she'd have to ask fur it herself. Pop explained that it was some different, too, as fur, fur Olie to ask fur clothes off of some one to what it was fur a 'dressed girl' dependent on other folks."

"Mrs. Morningstar as she talked down with her back to the door which led into the summer kitchen and so occupied was she with her story that she did not hear Eunice's light step as the girl came into the room bearing a pile of dishes that had just been washed. The clatter of the plates as they were placed in the closet made her turn with a little start."

Eunice also turned and stood with her back to the closet as she lifted her head and looked at her father's mother.

Klironow, his breakfast untouched, watched her with almost breathless interest. He seemed always to get the wrong impression of her face when her usually downcast eyes were raised and the soul that looked out of them was, as it were, mirrored. These dark, luminous eyes suggested an intensity of life within of which the customary stillness of her bearing gave no hint.

She came forward and stood by the table. Her face was pale, and she spoke in a low, musical voice, with its little peculiar trill, which Klironow was beginning to find singularly haunting.

"Overheard what you were saying to Mr. Klironow?"

It was the first time she had spoken his name in the whole month of his stay at the farm, and it fell on his ears as a stranger's.

"I have made up my mind that if you feel my support a burden to you and if I don't earn the food and clothes you give me I shall go away and earn my living elsewhere."

Mrs. Morningstar, unmindful of her boarder, stared for an instant dumfounded. "You'll go away?" she repeated, with a half gasp. "Where will you go?"

"I don't know. But I will no longer accept charity—from you or any one. If you think you bestow charity upon me, I will go away."

"You've got the right to stay here and work to pay us for all them back years we kept you before you was old enough to work for your little!" retorted Mrs. Morningstar angrily. "You were pop's boy, you speak about going away, and you'll see once!"

"Abe tells me that almost ever since you first took me I have really earned my living for the money I've got, and that for a long time I have earned wages besides, which have not been paid me. So it would seem," she said, with a dreary little smile, "that you are recipients of charity from me."

"Abe told you that?" exclaimed the woman. "Don't believe it. You are Abe's girl, not his son. Don't pretend to leave pop hear you say Abe spoke you such things! Do you hear? He'd just as soon say, 'I don't care!'"

"Yes," she said. "I obey you to me?"

"I will not promise that," she said. "How dare you say you won't to me? You never do it before. What's come over you?"

"Abe says," she said, "that you have no authority over me now that I am of age."

"And what, I'd like to know, makes Abe put such things as that in your head?" she demanded. "Well, pop'll soon get 'em out—your'll see. Here!" she commanded. "Clear off these here things!"

Obediently Eunice turned to gather up a handful of dishes, with which after a moment's pause she returned. She had not once looked at Klironow.

"Now, you see," complained Mrs. Morningstar, "how she tries to work over Abe till she gets him to do things against his own pop and mom to her! To think he'd say that as we owe her wages yet! Och, my souls!"

It was beyond expression, and she dropped it and began vigorously to scrape the plates that had been left after the breakfast of the young ladies.

As Klironow mechanically finished his own breakfast he was more than ever lost in wonder at the girl's ingratitude for Abe Morningstar. It seemed inconsistent with everything else about her. It made him feel an unreasonable impatience with her and put a damper upon the sympathy he would otherwise have felt for her situation. He was possessed, however, with a strong curiosity concerning her, and during all the rest of the day he was on the lookout for an opportunity to talk with her alone. He realized with a grim sense of the humor of it that it was the first time in his life he had ever voluntarily sought to talk with a girl.

He found himself astonished and annoyed as the hours went by to realize the difficulty, the well nigh impossibility, of finding the opportunity he sought. The girl herself added to the difficulty with her shy reserve and a certain dignity about her which made him feel almost guilty of an impertinence in seeking her confidence.

So intent was he upon securing the chance he desired that he carelessly let himself be discovered by Georgina and Daisy looking on the kitchen porch in the middle of the afternoon when they would naturally expect him to be in the fields with his employer.

"Have you a headache again this afternoon?" Daisy curiously inquired as the two girls, looking warm and tired from a long walk, came upon the porch steps where he sat.

"Yes, I have it in my head again wonderfully," he said.

"I am surprised," declared Daisy, "that Mr. Morningstar would employ such an invalid as you are, Peter—as much as he likes you."

"If farmhands were so scarce to get," Peter answered, recklessly improving Pennsylvania Dutch dialect, "he wouldn't keep me."

Mrs. Morningstar, who had stepped out to the porch bench to "pick over" a pan of coosieries, put up time to hear this remark of Peter's, but took her head and gave forth a loud laugh.

"You bet he wouldn't!" she cried.

"Well, since you're so weak," said Daisy, "you can put in your time forgetting your headache by amusing me. Can you play euchre?"

"I don't play nothin' but lara-tunes," he said.

"Oh, my gracious!" groaned Daisy. "Well, it isn't any of my business to butt in, but I should think," she observed reproachfully, "that you would at least make good your lost time. Peter, by helping Mrs. Morningstar to pick those berries. But I suppose," she added, taking on her air of acquiring useful information, "that to help a woman would not fall in with the ideas of manliness, would it? The Germans or rural Pennsylvania are just like the Germans of the fatherland in that respect at least. I was in Germany three days last summer, and in all that time I never once saw a man chivalrously help a woman pick about berries!"

"Now," protested Peter, "I seen a native help pick a woman with a basket this morning!"

"You must have been mistaken, Peter," Daisy said incredulously.

"No, I ain't! neither. I seen him when he done it."

"Was he a?"

she asked emphatically.

"Dutch an' all."

"I'd like to make a note of it," she said, gathering up her pencil and book. "Tell me, Peter, what were the circumstances and how did he help her?"

"She was his wife, and he helped her fasten a basket on her back to carry into the village."

Daisy dropped her notebook and looked at Peter severely, while Georgina gazed at him pensively.

"I am disappointed in you, Peter," Daisy said reproachfully. "Miss Elly and I both supposed that you had fine though undeveloped perceptions or intuitions, which, with a little encouragement, might reveal you to yourself."

She turned her back on him in disdain and began to help Mrs. Morningstar with her berries. "You're not worth while, Peter," she cast at him over her shoulder. "A man with such views is capable of other unheard dealings."

"Georgina sighed. "If my faith in human nature were not very large I should believe that to give even a suggestion of real civility to a born Pennsylvania German was almost a psychic impossibility. Frankly, Peter, isn't it?"

"It may be that kind of an impossibility," answered Peter in a tone of reluctance to commit himself. "When you say so, I ain't denyin' no such statements."

"But, Peter, I had hopes of you that day you so nicely picked up my hat-pin for me," said Georgina in her patronizing tone of voice.

"Does it, to see how the pin was made, that you could stick it through your skull and not kill yourself?" she said, disclaiming any gallantry in the act.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Miss Lidia Lipkova, the Russian prima donna, has joined the National Progressive Women's Suffrage union in New York.

Mrs. Brunkin, otherwise "Frank Dancy," has achieved novel writing and is at work upon a biography and catalogue of illustrious Edmund, Lady Hamilton.

Miss Curie of Paris, who, with her husband, discovered radium, was elected an honorary associate member of the American Chemical society at its recent meeting in Boston.

Miss Elizabeth Moore, a Yamar graduate, has entered the agricultural department of the University of Missouri at Columbia, and has announced her intention of becoming an expert farmer. She is a member of several clubs in St. Louis.

Mrs. Jane Morris of San Gap, Jackson county, Ky., in eighty-one years old and has had a total of 580 descendants, of whom 48 are living and of whom 43 are great-great-grandchildren.

"She is a woman with vigorous and some of her descendants in the fifth generation are approaching maturity, she may see descendants in the sixth generation."

Miss Pearl A. Billings is said to be the youngest hotel woman in Chicago, perhaps in this country. Several years ago she inherited from her cousin the lease, furnishings and good will of the Newberry hotel. By good management Miss Billings has made it a success without a bar, a thing which the hotel men of Chicago told her would be impossible.

Turkey Red.

Turkey red is made from the madder plant, which grows in India.

Mr. MacMaster, who is now in the majority, was identified with the various Scotch societies, especially those which embraced the memory of Scotch poetry and literature. He added to the list the bibliograph of Burns, of whom he was an ardent worshipper.

Mr. MacMaster is an ardent Tariff Reformer. He has nursed the division which he now represents by a tremendous majority with great care, seeking every opportunity to get before the people, and especially anxious to make the point, that the only people in England who enjoy free trade are foreigners who have free markets of their own people, while the British manufacturer has to pay freights and local taxes for the privilege of selling his goods at cheaper rates, because he comes in free.

Distinguished Sons.

Hon. W. R. Peel has Served in Many Capacities in Many Parts.

Son of a famous Speaker of the House of Commons, Hon. W. R. Peel, who has again won Taunton for the Unionists, has proved himself a hard political worker, in consequence of which he was elected to the leadership of the Municipal Reform Party.

At the present session of the Quebec Legislature, there will be a move to establish something like working-day hours into the proceedings of the Lower House. Mr. Arthur Plante, M.P.P. for Beauchamp, is a prime mover in the plan, and early in the session he will introduce the necessary resolution.

In an explanatory way it may be said that the popular idea that a representative's attendance at the Parliament of which he is a member is a great business, is a fallacy, as far as the Ignoble work of hauling a freight train on the Rome, Waterville and Ouellet division of the New York Central railroad.

English Etchings.

Women may be persons, by royal grant, but cannot sit in the house of lords.

The king has power to dissolve parliament even before it has attempted any business.

Survey cameras for use from balloons are now in constant use in the British army.

In Russia's trade last year there was a decline of 10 per cent in the first quarter and an increase of 10 per cent in the last.

Roman Boxes.

A boxer of ancient Rome would have laughed contemptuously at the suggestion that he should use gloves in his boxing matches. To make his blows more effective it was the custom to hold in each hand a heavy ball of mud.

With his feet thus weighted near by, heavy blows brought him down.

Microscopic Life.

The first organized living forms are extremely minute and can only be recognized by powerful microscopes. A slender infusion of hay, allowed to stand for two or three days, will literally swarm with living things, most of them not exceeding the forty-thousandth part of an inch in diameter.

And yet, minute as these animalcules are, they are thoroughly alive. They dart about and digest, shooting out their jellylike substance to seize their food.

A great yachtsman and Alpine climber, Sir H. Seymour King, who, on his birthday, has metaphorically "practised" a hundred times over every mountain peak he has ever climbed, has called attention to the necessity of a good memory.

Had a Good Memory.

Dundee, Scotland, policemen appear to have a good memory. During the recent election campaign there was a great deal of talk about the fact that Winston Churchill's speech, an English gentleman was making a few remarks about the fact that the accommodation. The officer having given the desired information, the interview was closed. During the interview when the policeman inquired, "I think you were here last year, were you not?" the stranger at once acknowledged that the policeman's memory for faces was exceptionally good.

Pelting Ireland.

The cost of pelting Ireland is no small item. A return just issued gives the total annual cost of the pelting of Ireland for the years ending 31st March last. The average yearly cost of the forces during the year ending 31st March last was £24,774 was recovered from the local authorities for extra police, the average cost of the pelting of Ireland for the year ending March last was £24,774 was recovered from the local authorities.

M.P. FOR CHERTSEY.

Donald MacMaster, K.C., Comes From Famous Glasgow County.

Mr. Donald MacMaster, K.C., who has been elected for Chertsey, Surrey, in the Unionist interest is a Glasgow "boy"—a Canadian of the Scotch stock.

His father, Mr. MacMaster, was a member of the school of that district that he received the elements of his education.

One of his schoolmates was Mr. P. Robert Robertson of Montreal, ex-president of the Board of Trade. A year ago Mr. MacMaster, accompanied by his old friend, proceeded to Glasgow, and presented the school which they used to attend with a flag to commemorate that early connection.

For many years Mr. MacMaster was one of the most brilliant members of the Montreal Bar. Of both commercial and criminal law he made a thorough study. In important criminal cases, he disclosed a power of analysis, a keenness to cross-examination, an eloquence and incisiveness of utterance, a power of persuasion which gave him much distinction.

It was the enlargement of his practice which induced him to take up his residence in London. He had been engaged in most of the important cases of the last few years, and his permanent abode on the other side.

Always an ardent Imperialist, Mr. MacMaster began almost immediately to study public questions, and in due course was nominated by the Unionists for the division of which he is now the representative.

Mr. MacMaster represented Glen Gary in the Ontario Legislative assembly, where he gained much distinction by his crisp, incisive utterances, his wit and pungency, his feeling and taste for literary and cultured expression.

He has been ambitious for years for the distinction which is now conferred upon him. It need not be doubted that Mr. MacMaster will render a good account of himself in the House of Commons.

While in Canada, Mr. MacMaster was identified with the various Scotch societies, especially those which embraced the memory of Scotch poetry and literature. He added to the list the bibliograph of Burns, of whom he was an ardent worshipper.

CARING FOR OBSTERS.

NOVA SCOTIAN MAKES IT HIS WORK IN COMMONS.

J. H. Sinclair, M.P. for Guysboro, N.B., is an Enthusiast in Matter of Maritime Province Fisheries and Lobster Forward to the Day When World Will Come to Eastern Canada For Midnight Supper Materials.

If you happen into the Tower Room of the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa—the room under the capital's Big Ben—you may encounter a little group of men unostentatiously at work, with few or no spectators—they have no favors to dispense. It is the Committee on Marine and Fisheries, and presiding over it is a quiet Nova Scotian little heard of in Ontario, but influential in promoting the interests of his province. It is J. H. Sinclair.

He is a Scotch Presbyterian from Pictou, a happy-go-lucky way, but of a sudden the chairman throws in a question that shows his grasp of all the details of its work. Mr. Sinclair is, in fact, the father of the committee, which is a new one, and whose aim is to consider bills relating to marine and fisheries matters and to investigate problems affecting ocean industries.

The festive lobster is now a product confined virtually to the shores of eastern Canada, and if the fisheries extinction is not checked a good many midnight suppers all over the world will lose their charm.

The sleep of thousands of good lives may go on less disturbed than before. At the Atlantic coast, a fisherman's catch of codfish has been taken with a net, and the fisherman's net is a net of codfish.

Completion of the lobster. Another achievement of Mr. Sinclair was to secure an important amendment to the regulations regarding deck-loads, which has since been adopted on both sides of the Atlantic.

The attention of the authorities is called to the uprightness of the Mission Hall here for public gatherings such as moving picture shows, etc. At these shows this hall is packed to the door with men, women and children, mostly children, who attend without a thought of possible danger. Besides being close and unwholesome, it is also too small to comfortably accommodate more than half the number that usually attend, and if at any time a fire should occur while a show is in progress the rush and excitement would cause a panic and mean the tramping to death of children and perhaps older folks.

A spacious amusement hall or opera house has long been needed, and despite the efforts of our citizens to secure funds for such a purpose they have not yet succeeded in getting the necessary. The matter was taken up but a short while ago and an effort made to form a syndicate or company who might undertake the work and find the necessary capital, but like many other projects that would prove of benefit to the town, it was allow to fall through and die away.

Athletic Association

A largely attended meeting of sporting enthusiasts was held in the Blaimore Hotel last night with a view to forming an athletic association, when officers and committees were appointed. Following we give a copy of minutes of the meeting:

C. L. Bambrick in the chair.

Geo. Ingham called upon to report on feelings of base-ball boys re amalgamation.

Report favorable, and resolution to form association unanimously passed.

Election of officers:

Pres. R. W. Coulthart.

Vice Pres. J. B. Smith.

Secy. Syd. D. Ross.

Treas. Chas. L. Bambrick.

Question arises as to collection around town. C. L. Bambrick proposes that a Collection Committee be appointed. Seconded by G. Ingham.

Committee appointed, L. Gales, G.

Ingham, S. Ross.

Collection of subscriptions to be made as soon as possible.

Membership fee: Proposed by G.

Ingham that same be $1.50. Seconded by L. Ross and unanimously carried.

Financial Committee to look after the financial interests of the association be appointed. Proposed by C.

L. Bambrick and seconded by G.

Ingham Unanimously carried.

Fin. Com. appointed: Gables,

Miller, Gales, Ross.

Proposed by Chairman that committee be appointed to see that the grounds are kept in good order, i.e.

to attend to any fencing that is to be done, rolling pitches, etc. Seconded by L. Gales. Unan. carried.

Ground Committee: Bambrick,

Adams and Thomas.

Unanimously agreed not to fix date for next meeting until thought fit by the secretary and the treasurer.

After subscriptions have been collected, membership tickets to be printed.

Vote of thanks to the Chairman, proposed by G. Ingham, seconded by

S. Ross.

An Appeal For Support

At a meeting on Wednesday evening the baseball and football clubs amalgamated and formed an Athletic Association. The object of the union is to promote a brotherly feeling between the two clubs. Instead of jealous rivalry, which is too often experienced between followers of the two games, it is hoped and expected that each club will turn out and support the other. Football and baseball player alike are hereby asked to do all in their power to promote clean sport in our town, to cast aside selfish interests and do their utmost to further the cause of the association.

There may be a few "buckskins"

there always are - but the best way to deal with a knocker is to pay attention to him, and then if he will not help, he will at least do no harm.

An athletic association has been tried and proved a success in Lille,

Bellevue, Coleman, and other neighboring towns, and unless the crop of buckskins is larger in Blaimore than in the surrounding towns the Association should prove a very great mutual benefit.

Committees have been appointed to look after and pass upon all expenditures, and any one who supports the Association can rest assured that their money will not be squandered. Only the most necessary expenses will be paid out of the general fund.

Several of the business men of the town have already promised the boys support and it is to be expected that any business or public man in Blaimore will be unwilling to contribute something towards the furtherance of clean sport in our town.

A good team in any line of athletics is a splendid advertisement. We had no football team last year, but the baseball team of last season was a distinct credit to Blaimore, as they won every game played. The material is here this season in both football and baseball, and with support from their townsmen will give a creditable account of themselves. During the week a collection will be taken up and a list of those who donate, together with the amount given, will be published in next week's issue of this paper. The boys are taking this means of publicly thanking their supporters.

Wedding Bells

ROBERTSON - WOLSTENHOLME

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at Coleman last evening, when

Mr. W. Wolstenholme, of Coleman, was united to Miss J. Robertson, of Blaimore. The ceremony was performed in the Institutional church by the Rev. T. M. Murray before a goodly attendance of friends of the contracting parties. The bride, who was very prettily attired, was attended by Miss M. Gate, while the groom was supported by his brother.

After the ceremony the party drove to Blaimore, where they took the evening train for a honeymoon trip through B. C.

LOCAL ITEMS.

James Mercer, of Coleman, was in town this week.

Messrs. Hill and Venables have secured several painting and decorating contracts from Frank, Bellevue and Lillo.

Omer McIntyre, jeweler, of Cranbrook, B. C., was in town Tuesday.

A much needed railing was placed along the station platform.

High-class jewelry engraving and electroplating at McIntyre & Erickson's, Armstrong Ave., Cranbrook, B. C.

Andy Good, the proprietor of the Summit Hotel, at Crow's Nest, and manager of the annual fair menagerie there, was a visitor in town on Tuesday.

Insure your life, your house or your live stock with Lyon & Hinds.

J. A. McDonald, with a party of men, left for the South Fork district on Tuesday to engage upon a summer's prospecting venture.

It is rumored that Jim Burrows and Charlie Robinson will don the "mils" on the 19th. This will likely be the premier fight of the season.

Messrs. Pierce and Higgins, of the Ellis Painting and Decorating Co., visited our section on Tuesday night, and expressed themselves agreeably surprised at the up to date-ness of our place.

A few good lots in Pelletier addition for $150 each.—Lyon & Hinds.

A well attended meeting of delegates of the Crow's Nest Pass Football Association took place at the Frank Hotel on Saturday last. The officers for the ensuing year were duly elected and fixtures arranged for the season's games.

Morgan G. Davis left for the South Fork district on Tuesday, where he will engage upon a prospecting venture.

The publicity number of the Lethbridge Daily Herald is certainly a banner edition.

Dwellings from $450 up to $1500. If you want to buy see Lyon & Hinds.

The material for the new Blairmore station arrived on Monday and has been unloaded. We learn the work of erection will commence at once and that the site chosen is just east of the freight shed.

J. W. Sadler visited Lillo on Monday, and went to Bellevue, Hillcrest and Passburg Tuesday in the interest of the Enterprise "special."

Rumor has it that W. J. Bartlett is showing commendable enterprise by monopolizing the cyanogen gas of Halley's comet. Why not borrow some from Coleman—Dist. Ledger.

The total sales of Housefield Heights subdivision, Calgary, amounts to thirty-six thousand dollars. The property has only been on sale two weeks.

Last night's card party, given by the ladies in aid of the R. C. church, was a thorough success. Everything went well to make the evening an enjoyable one.

Messrs. Hill and Venables have completed the painting of the school.

Messrs. Hill and Venables are fully alive to the possibilities of the future of this town and are displaying their hope and enterprise by a lavish outlay in the line of painters' and paper-hanger's outfit and supplies. Their new show room, first west of the Alberta Hotel, is being stocked with paints, oils, varnishes, etc., while their stock of wall-papers is the largest and best assortment ever shown in the Pass. They have appointed Mr. D. Fraser as their foreman here, who has under his employ a whole host of painters who are busy placing the spring "dabs." Mr. Fraser is well known far and wide as a capable and competent workman, and we believe the interests of Messrs. Hill and Venables will be best served by him.

Brief News Notes

Of the twelve thousand new settlers landed at Halifax, N. S., and St. John, N. B., last week, fully two thirds were destined for provinces west of Ontario.

Contracts have been let for the construction of a new orphanage theatre in Winnipeg at a cost of some $200,000. The building will have a seating capacity for 1,800 people.

Kingley Fairbridge, a London, England, Rhodes scholar, is endeavoring to inaugurate a scheme for emigrating poor law children between the ages of 8 and 10 years, giving them several years' education in agricultural schools. The scheme has been warmly taken up by the colonial club at Oxford and the support of the agent's general has been obtained. Premier Morris has offered 50,000 acres in Newfoundland.

Several dealers have been sent to prison for fraud on the Ontario government in connection with the wolf bounty in that province. The plan was to purchase prairie wolf skins at about $2, present them to Ontario Magistrates and secure a bounty of $10 and then resell the skins where they were purchased. A big conspiracy to defraud has been going on for some time.

Location and surveying work on the Great Waterways has practically ceased, and all plans for the construction of all but 60 miles from Edmonton have been abandoned pending the investigation by the royal commission. Several survey parties have come in, and it is understood others have been called in. However, construction will proceed on the 60 miles, and several contracts have been let for clearing the right of way.

Last week a man named Andrew Chirrup, a Slavonian aged about 32 years, and employed in the Coal Creek mines, attempted to board a passing freight train at Fernie, B. C., but in doing so missed his footing and rolling under the wheels had both legs severed from his body, dying almost instantly.

The Observer, published at Spokane, Wash., by the Allan Haynes publishing Co., is coming out under a new and improved style, which is strikingly attractive and a marked advance over the former Inland Observer. Last week's Weekly Observer contains a full page frontispiece, typical of camp life in the tall forests of the great North West mountains and is made up of 22 pages instead of 18, all containing original and interesting material.

Every family and especially those who reside in the country should be provided at all time with a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment. There is no telling when it may be wanted in case of an accident or emergency. It is most excellent in all cases of rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Rev. George M. Atlas, B. A., an Egyptian, especially ordained by the Presbyterian church, and stationed at Toronto, Ont., was arrested last week on the charge of perjury. Several other charges of fraud are also made against him. Atlas' arrest caused a sensation in Toronto. He is well known as a church lecturer and is highly educated.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets assist nature in driving all impurities out of the system, insuring a free and regular condition and restoring the organs of the body to health and strength. Sold by dealers everywhere.

It is stated that 30,000 emigrants will sail from Liverpool to Canada on twenty-three steamships during April. The increasing proportion of people with capital who are emigrating is the subject of comment in London.

The sealing steamer Iceland, one of the oldest in the Newfoundland fleet was crushed by the fies last week and went to the bottom. Her crew of 170 men were rescued.

Everybody has heard of the Newfoundland fisheries, but the fact that the skins of the codfish are being converted into leather will be news to most people. F. D. Arnand, the Canadian trade commissioner at Bristol, has received a sample of cod skin leather manufactured by J. Clouston from St. John's Nfld. It is a soft tan, and apparently durable as well as pliable.

Tom Longboat was obliged to quit in a twelve mile race against Accoss at Toronto last week. Longboat held out to go ten miles and one lap, but could go no further, and was then overlapped by ten horses.

Diarrhoea should be cured with out loss of time and by a medicine which like Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy not only cures promptly but produces no unpleasant after effects. It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. Sold by dealers everywhere.
